

I'm glad to share that I received a project under Hack O Week in my college (SIT NAGPUR). The topic of my project is Development of an E-Commerce Website. Through this project, I will be learning how online shopping platforms are built. It will cover front-end design, back-end development, and database management. I will also explore features like product listing, cart system, and secure checkout. It is a great opportunity to improve my coding and problem-solving skills. I will be working step by step to create a functional and user-friendly website. The project also encourages teamwork, creativity, and innovation. I'm excited to complete this challenge and gain valuable experience.